PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

During 2011, Noisedirect and the Noise Tzar made a request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000, to 98 Councils, including all London Boroughs, outer London Councils and all Councils in the South East. The request asked Councils to answer 6 questions.

The purpose of the request was to find out how Councils are complying with their duty under the Housing Act 2004; to inspect properties for psychological hazards from noise and take appropriate enforcement action, by serving Improvement or Hazard Awareness Notices.

The request also sought to establish if Councils were carrying out any non statutory functions during Noise Action Week (between 26-30 April 2010; coordinated by EPUK) coinciding with the 15th annual International Noise Awareness Day, on 28 April 2010 (Co-ordinated by the Centre for Hearing and Communication).

Out of 98 Councils approached only 89 responded. Not all Councils who responded answered all 6 questions.

From answers received, Noisedirect found that in 2010 Councils:

- Served, a total of 4 notices under the Housing Act 2004, for psychological hazards from noise.
- 1 Council responded to say that there are no psychological hazards from noise, in its area, which is why no inspections were carried out.

And that:

During 2010; 81% of Councils did not undertake any Inspections for psychological hazards from noise.

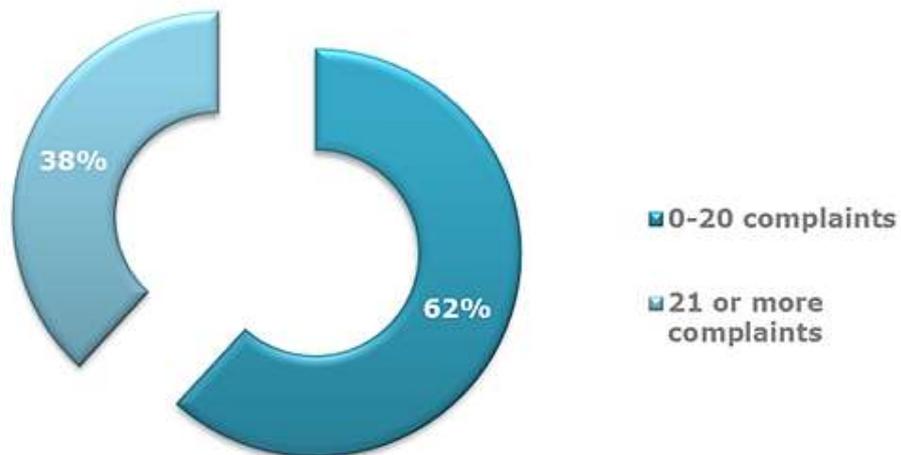

During 2010; 95% of Councils did not take any enforcement action under the Housing Act 2004 for psychological hazards from noise.

Only 40% of Councils took part in Noise Action Week between 26-30 April 2010.

During Noise Action Week 2010; 62% of Councils received between 0-20 noise complaints.
